

TAKE HEART

A Conversation in Poetry

Edited & Introduced by Wesley McNair, Maine Poet Laureate

Today's poet, Marnie Reed Crowell of Deer Isle, welcomes spring with three brief poems about birds.

Three Poems

by Marnie Reed Crowell

Peek

Between the twigs a warbler sings

morning air
aglow with aria

and all I see
is a tiny eye.

haiku by sparrow

Pale sun, old snow
 white-throated sparrow
cold pure call of spring
call of spring

Spotted Sandpiper

Just at the silver seam between the sea and shore
spotted sandpiper
teeters, speaks softly to itself a poem it has by heart.
